ROOM FOR EXPANSION

The Tonopah-Bonanza Printing Co., Washington, D. C., has just received word that the U. S. Government has decided to purchase the building in which the Bonanza is published for the purpose of using it as a warehouse for the storage of surplus government property. This is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business, and it is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business, and it is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business.

Meanwhile it is well to keep in mind the fact that the Bonanza is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business, and it is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business, and it is a very important step in the expansion of the Bonanza's business.

No observant economist believed that the foreign trade of the United States was likely to continue on the scale of last year, for the situation was abnormal. And there is no cause for discouragement in the falling off shown by the latest report. There is, however, incentive to investigate with a view to seeing what can be done to improve matters. And there are careful students of economics who repeat suggestions previously made that there are markets which are the most natural for the foreign trade of our producers and exporters.

Some of the most of these lie to the south of the United States—in the lower part of the western hemisphere. The subject may be true for much has been written with regard to opportunities in Central and South America. But there is room for increased effort in that direction. Some recent suggestions are very apt. These suggestions are based on practical experience and aim at helping the business men of the United States. One of them is this: A first-class American house should trade only with the first-class South American houses; and thus "by right dealing permanent, pleasant and profitable business will develop as certainly as through similar connections in the United States." Other hints, including those relating to the engagement of the proper kind of salesmen and forming business relations that shall be cordial and enduring, are given, the whole making a useful manual, as to the procedure which promises success in developing trade with Latin America.

LISTENS WELL

President Harding, in submitting to Congress the first budget, says: "I submit herewith the budget of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922. It will be noted that the estimated ordinary expenditures for 1922 show a reduction of $1,513,537,682.20, compared with the actual ordinary expenditures for 1921; and that the estimated ordinary expenditures for 1923 show a reduction of $447,704,239 under 1922, making the estimated ordinary expenditures under the budget of 1923 $1,961,241,921.20 less than the actual ordinary expenditures for 1921." That statement will probably not be pertrated in glyphs but it will make national and international affairs.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

EDISON QUESTIONS

THOMAS A. EDISON, who has a very low opinion of the intellectuality of the average college student, has come out with a new set of questions, historical, political, geographical and scientific.

The Wizard is much too honest a man for anybody to suggest that he deliberately got up these posers for the purpose of humiliating his fellow citizens.

So it may be admitted that the wide ground covered by the queries represents his own interest in all sorts of subjects having to do with human activities.

But it is doubtful whether or not ability to answer correctly all or most of these questions could be any test of the intelligence of anybody, in college or out of it. For intelligence and knowledge are very different things.

It was once said of a distinguished man that he had a larger store of useless knowledge than anybody of his time. Mr. Edison would not admit that any knowledge could be useless.

In fact he seems to take the attitude of the late Lord Macaulay who was in the habit of qualifying a statement as to something that nobody knew anything about, but himself, by saying "this every schoolboy knows."

As a result "Macaulay's Schoolboy" became the proper definition of an inferior prodigy.

Lord Kelvin was one of the most distinguished men of science of his time. Addressing his students at Glasgow University on one occasion he said that the great thing about the higher mathematics was that it could be of no possible use to anybody.

Yet the fact that Kelvin and a couple of his friends, one in America and another in Europe, used to amuse themselves with these useless investigations, is, in a way, an argument in favor of Mr. Edison. It goes to show that certain things are worth while even if no direct advantage is to be derived from them.

Old-fashioned schoolmasters were great believers in the importance of facts, and a great part of their time was passed in getting them into the minds of the young.

But the modern schoolmaster goes about his business in a different way. He does not try to teach facts. He does try to teach general principles.

It is like the difference between the old geography and the new. The old dealt with the names of places, rivers, mountains and so on. The new deals with the effect of the physical shape of the earth's surface on the races centered over it.

A well-trained lawyer is not one who carries all the cases around with him in his head. But he does know how to put his hand on anything he wants.

In the same way it is more important to be able to get at your facts than to know them.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name in history; meaning; when it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

JUANITA.

THE lovely Spanish favorite, Juanita, has come to be a "name without a country." The music of its syllables proved irresistible to many countries and in modern times it lost its Spanish heritage and came to be as American as Anne or Edith.

Juanita means "grace of the Lord." It comes originally from the same source as John. It was probably in honor of St. John the Evangelist's guardianship of the Blessed Virgin that her name became joined with his. In the fifth century a Giovanni (John) Maria Visconti of Milan appears and straightway Juan Maria became a popular name in Spain.

By adding a final "a," the feminine Juana was formed, a name which proved more acceptable than the masculine Juan as a preface to Maria, and soon Maria was dropped entirely and Juana became a separate name. Spain is fond of endearments and diminutives, as Rosita and Carmelita and scores of other names prove, so presently the ever-popular Juanita was evolved. Many famous women of Spain bore the name, among them a queen, who was known as Juana la Loca. Her reign in Castile was an unfortunate and distressing period.

It may be that the Spanish influence in the southwestern states brought Juanita into vogue in this country, or her fame, according to some, may have been established by the country-wide vogue of the old song with which even the present generation is familiar. Who does not remember: "Juanita, ask thy soul if we should part?"

Juanita's talismanic gem is the tropical. That gem of sunny Spain promises her protection from evil spirits, good health and happiness. Tuesday is her lucky day and seven her lucky number.

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—"Duffy" Lewis, Salt Lake outfielder, and form "world series batting star" with a percentage of .403 was the best hitter in the Pacific Coast baseball league for 1921. Lewis cracked out 14 home runs, 6 three-baggers, 32 two-baggers and drove in 34 runs in making his average.

His nearest competitor was "Hank" Miller, Oakland outfielder, with an average of .347. Miller played in 184 games, however, while Lewis participated in but 195 contests. Miller's .347 was scored 177 runs, more than any other player this season.
